

The Expat's Greek Tax Calendar

Your year of Greek tax deadlines, in plain English.

2026 EDITION

Greek tax life runs on a handful of recurring deadlines. Below are the ones that matter most to foreign residents, property owners, and freelancers, with what each actually means for you. One thing to know up front: filing dates in Greece shift and get extended often, so treat this as your map of the year, not the final word on any single date.

EVERYONE WHO IS A TAX RESIDENT

Annual income tax return (E1)

Filing window: the platform opens in mid-March and closes on 15 July (the 2026 season covers your 2025 income).

Paying: pay in one lump sum, or spread it over up to 8 monthly installments. The first payment falls at the end of July.

Early-filing discount: file and pay in full earlier in the season and you earn a small discount on the tax, which tapers as the deadline approaches.

What this means for you: even if all your income is taxed abroad, you may still have to file in Greece once you are a tax resident here. Holding an AFM does not, on its own, create a filing duty. Tax residency does.

IF YOU OWN PROPERTY IN GREECE

Property tax (ENFIA)

Your notice: the ENFIA assessment appears on myAADE around mid-March.

Paying: one lump sum, or up to 12 monthly installments running roughly from March through to the following February.

Watch this: ENFIA is calculated from your property record (the E9). If that record is wrong, you overpay. You can correct the E9, and penalty-free correction windows apply during the year.

What this means for you: ENFIA is based on what you owned on 1 January, so the bill arrives on a predictable yearly schedule whether or not you buy or sell during the year.

Continued overleaf: freelancers, vehicle road tax, and your year at a glance.

IF YOU FREELANCE OR RUN A SOLE PROPRIETORSHIP

Freelancer obligations (VAT and social security)

VAT (FPA) periodic return: due by the last working day of the month after each period closes. You file quarterly if you keep single-entry books (so the periods end April, July, October, and January), or monthly if you keep double-entry books or your business is in its first two years.

Social security (EFKA): contributions are paid every month.

What this means for you: freelancing in Greece is a monthly and quarterly rhythm, not a once-a-year event. A standing reminder for your VAT periods is the simplest way to stay clear of penalties.

IF YOU OWN A CAR

Vehicle road tax (Tele Kykloforias)

Timing: the amount for the year ahead is issued in the autumn and is due by 31 December.

What this means for you: there is no installment option, and the late penalty is steep (often a multiple of the original amount), so this is one date worth circling.

Your year at a glance

When	What is due
Mid-March	Income tax platform opens; ENFIA notices posted to myAADE
End of every month	EFKA contributions; monthly VAT (double-entry or new businesses)
End Apr / Jul / Oct / Jan	Quarterly VAT return (single-entry books)
15 July	Income tax return (E1) deadline
End of July	First income tax payment (or pay in full)
March to February	ENFIA installments
31 December	Vehicle road tax for the coming year

Not sure which of these apply to you?

That is exactly what we are here for. We handle the Greek tax system in English so you do not have to decode it alone, from your AFM and annual return to ENFIA, freelancer setup, and a full move of your tax residency into or out of Greece.

Book a free consultation at mygreektax.eu

All regulated filings are carried out by a licensed member of the Economic Chamber of Greece (OEE). This guide is general information, not tax advice, and reflects the rules as of June 2026. Greek deadlines change and extensions are common, so always confirm the current date before you act. © 2026 MyGreekTax, mygreektax.eu